

DETROIT REVOLUTIONARY MOVEMENT RECORDS

BOX                      1 OF 16

FOLDER                3

DRUM UNIT STRUCTURE ORGANIZATION CHART

UNIT STRUCTURE

The basic organizational unit in DRUM is called the unit structure. It consists of seven officers. The names and functions of the officers are as follows:

Reporter: Person responsible for gathering pertinent information on the continuing train of injustices and abuses in the department.

Chairman & Co-Chairman: Chairs unit meetings and co-ordinates the activities of the unit structure. He is also responsible for strengthening the unit structure in terms of cohesiveness and discipline.

Treasurer: Responsible for collecting dues and keeping financial records.

Membership & Circulation: Parties include distributing literature to the workers and keeping records of recruits.

Educational: Responsible for politicizing, informing and developing programs and methods to deal with the concrete problems the organization faces.

Public Relations: The P.R. man is the official spokesman for the unit structure. His job is mainly to explain to non-members what DRUM is all about and informs others of DRUMs position on issues.

Intelligence & Security: Based on our previous encounters with the police and plant protection we felt a need to set up an office that will handle explosive situations. Since DRUM is not a military organization we try to avoid any unnecessary confrontation. The functions of Intelligence & Security deals with problems relating to the welfare of the workers such as discipline.

Steering Committee: The steering committee is a body composed of the chairman and co-chairman of the unit structure. This body serves to co-ordinate plant-wide activity and evaluate the progress and program of the organization.

